Technical Overview

The market's movement has been sideways in the recent weeks, bouncing between small zones. The transaction is slowly picking up pace, as the trading volume has spiked here and there. Overall, the market has gone through a healthy correction. Smart money is expected to be accumulating stocks. From a technical perspective, the price can remain sideways between the range of 2800-2400. A huge margin for traders but not directional for trend following techniques. The chances of the index falling beyond our recent is low is quite low.

Daily analysis

On daily graph,

Tracking the daily graph for the NEPSE index from an Elliot wave perspective, the correction has ended, and we are now heading further into motive waves where the index is expected to breach the 3000 - and 3200s. The above shared analysis is considered a case where the waves are correctly identified. The price action within the circle is this week's movement. If this upward move does move beyond our recent high of 2778, we can further act with confidence in the upcoming days, targeting the 2800 to 3000.
